The thought of what may happen on shipboard before the Majestic reaches New York, suggests dreadful possibilities, and a bloody tragedy on the high seas is regarded as not improbable by those who know the desired.

Another story is to the effect that Mr. Borrows appeared in London in January last, however, the trouble broke out arrows did not know his enemy was on board the Majestic, but that he missed the vessel at Liverpool and went on to Queenstown in accordance with plans he had made for sailling in that ship. In that event, the presence of both men aboard the Majestic on her present trip would be purely accident.
